THE KENTUCKY WINE EXPERIENCE

Kentucky may be best known for Bourbon, but there's a prospering wine industry in the state that's just as unique to our culture as the Kentucky

Derby and Bluegrass music. Kentucky is the proud home to a growing network of wineries that offer a friendly and warm experience to everyone from the person who likes an occasional glass of wine to the knowledgeable connoisseur.

Stroll through lush vineyards amidst the rolling hills of bluegrass. Tour our wineries and learn how Kentucky's vintners are continuing the ancient craft of winemaking. Relax in a tasting room and savor the many varieties of Kentucky wines available. We invite you to enjoy the hospitality and "unbridled spirit" of the Kentucky Wine Experience.

A Distinguished History
Kentucky was home to America's first commercial vineyard. In 1798, the first tendrils of the grapevines began to grow after Jean Jacques Dufour, winemaker for the Marquis de Lafayette, planted them in Nicholasville, Kentucky.

By the late 1800s, Kentucky was the nation's third largest grape and wine producer. However, Prohibition brought the industry to a screeching halt. Now, with America's increasing appreciation for wine, some Kentucky farmers find themselves observing the growing curls of the twisting vines as a once profitable industry comes back to a welcoming environment.
